

"Unfinished Business" by Cbatch & Herring is a collection of songs written over the last several decades that were recorded in and out of the studio. The recordings are in their most raw unpolished and basic forms, with one, "Will This Be The Last Time", gleaned from a 4-track demo cassette tape done right in a living room of an apartment where I once lived at Queensbridge Houses in Long Island City, New York.

The tunes are all representative of the many ideas that flowed and resulted from what I feel was the most prolific and creative period of my life. Much of this music came very close to being published, but until now, has not been. I have now decided to release these works to the public for whom they were intended for consideration, simply because it is time to do so.

Several of the songs are performed by James "Buddy" Herring, who was for many years my vocalist and co-writer. In addition, there are many other musicians and artists who also contributed performances to some of these tracks, that I thank here for their participation. You know who you are.

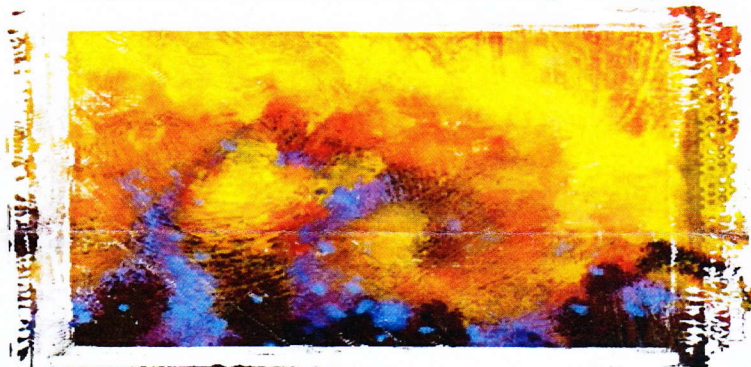

I do hope that this "old school" collection will be well received by all.
